Friday is in fact looking as if it will work. Please pencil us in on your calendar and reserve a conference room. I will e-mail you as soon as I can confirm the date at our end, along with the names of those with whom we would like to speak.

I propose that we start first thing in the morning and simply go as long as it takes. When is first thing for your shop?

Steve –

Friday does work for us, although it might be easier to start at 11:00 (our conference room is booked from 9:30 to 11:00). Hopefully that's okay.

I have been in contact with the folks in IS&T and they came up with a slightly different list of names of people you'd probably want to speak with. They suggested [redacted] (they've advised me that [redacted] would likely be able to provide the same information that [redacted] and [redacted] could provide). Also, [redacted] advised me that he probably can't provide much information beyond what you could get from [redacted] supervisor). If you still want to speak to everyone, I'm sure we can make it work, but I just want to be sure we're being as efficient as possible. Let me know your thoughts.

We can hold the meeting in the Office of General Counsel conference room, located in room [redacted]. To get here, walk [redacted] Follow the hallway until you see another sign for the entrance to the Office of the General Counsel.

I'm in meetings the bulk of today, so I will be somewhat inaccessible, but we can coordinate any additional details tomorrow.

Let's start with those three. As I understand it, [redacted] and [redacted] found the laptop and drive in January and logged its activity. It is important that we eventually speak with them. Steve --

Attached is a parking permit for you to use tomorrow. Please disregard the times on the permit, as there was a glitch in the online system and we have been told by the parking office that you will not be limited to those times when you come. When you arrive at the entrance to the lot ([redacted]), you should just give your name to the parking attendant and they will show you to a handicap accessible spot.

I am hopeful they will direct you to one of the spots right outside [redacted]. If they do, it is very easy to get to my office from there. [redacted]

Let's start with those three. As I understand it, [redacted] found the laptop and drive in January and logged its activity.
It is important that we eventually speak with them. However, I recognize the effort at efficiency on Friday, and that [redacted], though one step removed, may best be able to give an introductory overview of that stage of the events and the available logs.

Also, I still would like the opportunity to speak with [redacted] to better understand the MIT library's relationship with Jstor.

Steve -

Friday does work for us, although it might be easier to start at 11:00 (our conference room is booked from 9:30 to 11:00). Hopefully that's okay.

I have been in contact with the folks in IS&T and they came up with a slightly different list of names of people you'd probably want to speak with. They suggested [redacted] (they've advised me that [redacted] would likely be able to provide the same information that [redacted] could provide). Also, [redacted] advised me that he probably can't provide much information beyond what you could get from [redacted] ([redacted] supervisor).

If you still want to speak to everyone, I'm sure we can make it work, but I just want to be sure we're being as efficient as possible. Let me know your thoughts.

We can hold the meeting in the Office of General Counsel conference room, located in room [redacted]. To get here, walk [redacted] Follow the hallway until you see another sign for the entrance to the Office of the General Counsel.

I'm in meetings the bulk of today, so I will be somewhat inaccessible, but we can coordinate any additional details tomorrow.

[redacted]

If you can make it work from your end, let's do the interviews on Friday beginning at 10:00 a.m. I anticipate SA Pickett and Det. Murphy joining me. Tentatively, we would like to speak with the following five people in the order listed (as well as anyone else you may think useful or appropriate).

[redacted]

Please ask each of them to bring with them any notes and/or records they have pertaining to the incident that could be useful in recalling the events. The technical staff should bring with them all logs which they have so that they can walk us through them and explain them to us. [redacted] should bring anything [redacted] has pertaining to MIT's relationship with JSTOR and any notification(s) given to students and faculty concerning permissible uses.

Steve –

Sorry, I haven't forgotten about you. I've left a few messages for [redacted] and [redacted] but haven't heard back (I know that [redacted] has had several fires to put out over the last few days). My recommendation is that your investigators talk to them directly, without my involvement, for follow up questions. I assume that [redacted] and [redacted] will accept this recommendation, but I still want to confirm (and give them a heads up to expect to hear from you). Okay with you?

Subject: Permission to Talk Directly with [redacted]

[redacted]

One thing still hanging is whether we can have your permission to speak directly with [redacted] concerning those matters he took with him to research and any follow-up questions we may have.

I'm very much hoping to get the answers to the matters he was going to research during the first of the week. To recap, these are:

(1) Was there SSH or other remote access to the laptop? If so, from what IP address(es)? And, if we can tell, what commands were sent to the laptop?

(2) Was data sent from the laptop elsewhere? If so, where was the data sent? And, if we can tell, what was the nature of the data?

(3) What can we tell from the logs about how the scrip being run against JSTOR worked?

(4) What was MIT's effective cost in addressing the series of network compromises and JSTOR excessive downloads? ([redacted] has collected some figures concerning hours spent by technical staff, you may recall. The amount will end up an estimate of hours spent times implied internal billing rates, I presume.)

I recognize that (3) may take a while to analyze and (4) a while to pull together, but our understanding (1) and (2) as promptly as possible is important to the investigation, as I am sure you can understand.

[redacted]

When you meet with [redacted] on Monday, can you ask them two additional questions:

(1) Does MIT still have the DHCP logs in their entirety for November and December, 2010, or just for the last week of December, 2010, and the first week of January, 2011?

(2) Similarly, does MIT still have for November and December, 2010, the broader set of router logs which enabled it to determine that macaddress 004ce5a0c756 (the ghost-laptop) was assigned IP 18.55.6.240 during the two week period at the end.

There is still pending, in response to the subpoena to MIT:

(1) Charts, summaries, notes and e-mails from [redacted] and others; and

(2) All records pertaining to the expenditures of time and money to respond to the events.

At this juncture, I need to politely press you to prioritize completing MIT's response to the subpoena.

Also, please ensure that the technical staff is preserving all original electronic logs pertaining to the illegal downloads from MIT and the steps taken to identify their source. I believe we have been provided copies of these, but want to make sure that MIT is preserving the originals should they be necessary in subsequent court proceedings.

Steve –

[redacted]has gathered the emails and other documents, and is dropping them off at my office today. I will do my best to get through them so that they can be delivered to you on Friday. As to the time and money spent to respond, I'm not sure whether there have been any out-of-pocket expenditures, other than perhaps copying costs and the cost of the video camera. The rest will be time estimates from the various players, which of course are just that – estimates. How would you like that presented? There's not an official "business record" that would show that.

Finally, can we schedule a call for Tuesday so that [redacted]can answer the remaining outstanding questions in your earlier e-mails?

Re: Grand Jury Subpoena to MIT – JSTOR Investigation

Dear Assistant U.S. Attorney Heymann:

I am writing in response to the request in the above-referenced subpoena for "[a]ll records of expenditures of time and money to respond to the events."

As we have discussed, MIT employees do not, as a matter of course, track their time working on a particular task or assignment. As a result, there are no original documents reflecting that information. I have, however, asked the primary employees involved to give a rough estimate of the time they devoted to responding to the events. Below is that estimate:

[redacted] – 60 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 10 hours @ $67/hour
[redacted] – 20 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 38 hours @ $67/hour
[redacted] – 8.5 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 9 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 6 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 8 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 13.75 hours @ $55/hour

For IS&T employees (i.e., everyone except for [redacted]) the hourly rates are based on rates that IS&T uses to estimate software development costs, with managers charged at $67 per hour and staff charged at $55 per hour. For [redacted], the hourly rate is based on [redacted] actual salary and benefits (it is just a coincidence that [redacted] hourly rate also worked out to $55 per hour).

With the exception of [redacted], nearly all of the time was spent after law enforcement became involved. For [redacted], the amount of time spent prior to the involvement of law enforcement is estimated at 40 hours, 5 hours, and 8.75 hours, respectively. There may have been small amounts of time expended by others, as well, but these estimates reflect the bulk of MIT resources devoted to this matter. I estimate that I have spent approximately 25 hours responding to the subpoena.

As before, MIT requests the same protections relating to confidentiality and non-disclosure that are routinely provided by the U.S. Attorney's Office for documents and information produced in response to grand jury subpoenas.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

I will do my best, but that shouldn't be a problem. The challenge we're having is coming up with an hourly rate to apply. I guess we don't do that often. I can definitely get you the total hours, though. I have those now and just have one clarifying question for [redacted]

Re: Grand Jury Subpoena to MIT – JSTOR Investigation

Dear Assistant U.S. Attorney Heymann:

In response to the above-referenced subpoena, served on MIT on June 24, 2011, I am enclosing an electronic copy of a spreadsheet that lists all databases and journals subscribed to by the MIT Libraries.

The data in the spreadsheet comes from a "snapshot" of the database taken on February 26, 2011. In the ordinary course of business, daily backups are made of the database that holds this data, but the daily backups are only kept for a week. A staff member of the MIT Libraries happened to make a copy of the database on February 26, 2011, and retained that copy in her records. This version is the closest to the dates covered by the subpoena, but the information in the database remains relatively stable over time.

Below is some information about the fields in the spreadsheet.

Renewal Decision

The MIT Libraries conducted a cancellation project during the past fiscal year (FY2011). Decisions about cancellations (actually, decisions not to renew) were made in the Spring and Summer 2010 and then implemented during the Fall 2010. Since most subscriptions run on a calendar year basis, subscriptions slated for cancellation were not renewed after 12/31/2010. Not all of those subscriptions expired on 12/31/2010, but the specific expiration dates are not easily obtainable; some would have expired before that date, others after.

Type

The MIT Libraries categorize subscriptions based on how they are cataloged. Each subscription is given a single letter code to designate its type. The codes translate as follows:

D = Database
J = Journal
N = Newspaper
O = Numbered Monographic Series
P = Monograph in parts
S = Standard Serial
U = Unnumbered Monographic Series, and "made up" or publisher series

S is used as a catch-all to denote material that does not easily fit into the other categories. Note that although the subpoena only asks for information about "databases" and "journals," we have included information about other types of materials.

FMT (Format)

The physical format of the title is indicated in this field, using the following codes:

P = Paper
F = Microfilm/Microfiche
C = CD-ROM
E = Electronic (online)

If there are combined codes in this field, such as PE, it means that the order contains titles of both types; this usually happens with package or blanket orders.

Also held in print? (or, more accurately, Alternate Format)

Used only for journals (Type = J), this field is used to identify whether or not the MIT Libraries have an alternate format (print or electronic only) for the title.

Y = Yes
N = No
P = Package (and therefore it cannot be determined)

The Formats "F" for film/fiche and "C" for CD-ROM do not count as alternate formats; the MIT Libraries are only interested in tracking the relationship between "P" and "E." Note, also, that if the MIT Libraries subscribe to a particular journal, but that journal is also available in JSTOR, the database does not identify it as being available in an alternate format.

Title

Most of the information in this field is self-explanatory, although there is other information that may not be so obvious. Some of the more common references are:

- [WEB ACCESS]: Before there was a "FMT" field, an online subscription was indicated by using this phrase. It has proliferated and persisted throughout the years, though it is redundant now.
- [123456]: A series of six or seven numbers in square brackets is a reference to a system number in the library catalog, Barton.
- [D12345]: A series of six characters, the first one or two a letter and the last four or five a number, are a reference to purchase order numbers.
- [Split pay, see Vera for details]: There are some electronic resources for which the MIT Libraries share the costs with other departments at MIT; these notes indicate that this is one of those resources, with more details available in another database.
- [Tier or Category]: References to a Tier or Category number have to do with the pricing structure set out by the publisher.
- [Number of users]: Some electronic resources restrict the number of users who can access the materials at one time.
- [Cat as]: Notes such as "elec cat as j" or "print cat as s" have to do with a single title being cataloged in Barton with different classification schemes.
- [Opt in]: This should only be for Wiley titles; this refers to a subscription model offered by Wiley for new journals.
- [Part of .... Package]: This should also only be for Wiley titles; this has to do with pricing models for certain titles.

If there are other references for which you have questions, please let me know.

Publisher

The MIT Libraries try to keep this field current, but with over 8,000 records it may not be entirely accurate.

A note about ALL CAPS and abbreviations

You will find some Title and Publisher fields in ALL CAPS. An older version of the database could only store capital letters. The current version can store either, and the fields are slowly being re-entered, but some have not been converted yet. Also, the old database had a limit on the number of characters per field, so many common words are abbreviated (e.g., UNIV. for University, or NATL. for National).

As with its previous productions, MIT requests the same protections relating to confidentiality and non-disclosure that are routinely provided by the U.S. Attorney's Office for documents produced in response to grand jury subpoenas.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

Steve –

Did you receive an e-mail from me last night? I sent an electronic copy of the journals and databases spreadsheet along with a cover letter, but then received an e-mail this morning saying that delivery was delayed. I wonder if it's too big (the spreadsheet is about 100 pages and is a PDF).

Re: Grand Jury Subpoena to MIT – JSTOR Investigation

Dear Assistant U.S. Attorney Heymann:

In response to the above-referenced subpoena, served on MIT on June 24, 2011, I am enclosing an electronic copy of a spreadsheet that lists all databases and journals subscribed to by the MIT Libraries.

The data in the spreadsheet comes from a "snapshot" of the database taken on February 26, 2011. In the ordinary course of business, daily backups are made of the database that holds this data, but the daily backups are only kept for a week. A staff member of the MIT Libraries happened to make a copy of the database on February 26, 2011, and retained that copy in her records. This version is the closest to the dates covered by the subpoena, but the information in the database remains relatively stable over time.

Below is some information about the fields in the spreadsheet.

Renewal Decision

The MIT Libraries conducted a cancellation project during the past fiscal year (FY2011). Decisions about cancellations (actually, decisions not to renew) were made in the Spring and Summer 2010 and then implemented during the Fall 2010. Since most subscriptions run on a calendar year basis, subscriptions slated for cancellation were not renewed after 12/31/2010. Not all of those subscriptions expired on 12/31/2010, but the specific expiration dates are not easily obtainable; some would have expired before that date, others after.

Type

The MIT Libraries categorize subscriptions based on how they are cataloged. Each subscription is given a single letter code to designate its type. The codes translate as follows:

D = Database
J = Journal
N = Newspaper
O = Numbered Monographic Series
P = Monograph in parts
S = Standard Serial
U = Unnumbered Monographic Series, and "made up" or publisher series

S is used as a catch-all to denote material that does not easily fit into the other categories. Note that although the subpoena only asks for information about "databases" and "journals," we have included information about other types of materials.

FMT (Format)

The physical format of the title is indicated in this field, using the following codes:

P = Paper
F = Microfilm/Microfiche
C = CD-ROM
E = Electronic (online)

If there are combined codes in this field, such as PE, it means that the order contains titles of both types; this usually happens with package or blanket orders.

Also held in print? (or, more accurately, Alternate Format)

Used only for journals (Type = J), this field is used to identify whether or not the MIT Libraries have an alternate format (print or electronic only) for the title.

Y = Yes
N = No
P = Package (and therefore it cannot be determined)

The Formats "F" for film/fiche and "C" for CD-ROM do not count as alternate formats; the MIT Libraries are only interested in tracking the relationship between "P" and "E." Note, also, that if the MIT Libraries subscribe to a particular journal, but that journal is also available in JSTOR, the database does not identify it as being available in an alternate format.

Title

Most of the information in this field is self-explanatory, although there is other information that may not be so obvious. Some of the more common references are:

- [WEB ACCESS]: Before there was a "FMT" field, an online subscription was indicated by using this phrase. It has proliferated and persisted throughout the years, though it is redundant now.
- [123456]: A series of six or seven numbers in square brackets is a reference to a system number in the library catalog, Barton.
- [D12345]: A series of six characters, the first one or two a letter and the last four or five a number, are a reference to purchase order numbers.
- [Split pay, see Vera for details]: There are some electronic resources for which the MIT Libraries share the costs with other departments at MIT; these notes indicate that this is one of those resources, with more details available in another database.
- [Tier or Category]: References to a Tier or Category number have to do with the pricing structure set out by the publisher.
- [Number of users]: Some electronic resources restrict the number of users who can access the materials at one time.
- [Cat as]: Notes such as "elec cat as j" or "print cat as s" have to do with a single title being cataloged in Barton with different classification schemes.
- [Opt in]: This should only be for Wiley titles; this refers to a subscription model offered by Wiley for new journals.
- [Part of .... Package]: This should also only be for Wiley titles; this has to do with pricing models for certain titles.

If there are other references for which you have questions, please let me know.

Publisher

The MIT Libraries try to keep this field current, but with over 8,000 records it may not be entirely accurate.

A note about ALL CAPS and abbreviations

You will find some Title and Publisher fields in ALL CAPS. An older version of the database could only store capital letters. The current version can store either, and the fields are slowly being re-entered, but some have not been converted yet. Also, the old database had a limit on the number of characters per field, so many common words are abbreviated (e.g., UNIV. for University, or NATL. for National).

As with its previous productions, MIT requests the same protections relating to confidentiality and non-disclosure that are routinely provided by the U.S. Attorney's Office for documents produced in response to grand jury subpoenas.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Enclosure

In your letter, you refer to before and after law enforcement became involved. I am interested in a different cutoff point.

How many of whose hours were spent through the point when Swartz was identified and stopped on January 6th? I.e., excluding the time people spent being interviewed after Swartz was arrested by Cambridge police and responding to subpoenas, but including the full period MIT employees were actively trying to identify and put a stop to who was exploiting JSTOR.

I recognize it is a quick turnaround, but if you can give me the cut on Tuesday, it would be much appreciated.

I will do my best, but that shouldn't be a problem. The challenge we're having is coming up with an hourly rate to apply. I guess we don't do that often. I can definitely get you the total hours, though. I have those now and just have one clarifying question for [redacted].

Re: Grand Jury Subpoena to MIT – JSTOR Investigation

Dear Assistant U.S. Attorney Heymann:

I am writing in response to the request in the above-referenced subpoena for "[a]ll records of expenditures of time and money to respond to the events."

As we have discussed, MIT employees do not, as a matter of course, track their time working on a particular task or assignment. As a result, there are no original documents reflecting that information. I have, however, asked the primary employees involved to give a rough estimate of the time they devoted to responding to the events. Below is that estimate:

[redacted] – 60 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 10 hours @ $67/hour
[redacted] – 20 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 38 hours @ $67/hour
[redacted] – 8.5 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 9 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 6 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 8 hours @ $55/hour
[redacted] – 13.75 hours @ $55/hour

For IS&T employees (i.e., everyone except for [redacted]) the hourly rates are based on rates that IS&T uses to estimate software development costs, with managers charged at $67 per hour and staff charged at $55 per hour. For [redacted], the hourly rate is based on [redacted] actual salary and benefits (it is just a coincidence that [redacted] hourly rate also worked out to $55 per hour).

With the exception of [redacted], nearly all of the time was spent after law enforcement became involved. For [redacted], the amount of time spent prior to the involvement of law enforcement is estimated at 40 hours, 5 hours, and 8.75 hours, respectively. There may have been small amounts of time expended by others, as well, but these estimates reflect the bulk of MIT resources devoted to this matter. I estimate that I have spent approximately 25 hours responding to the subpoena.

As before, MIT requests the same protections relating to confidentiality and non-disclosure that are routinely provided by the U.S. Attorney's Office for documents and information produced in response to grand jury subpoenas.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

In your letter, you refer to before and after law enforcement became involved. I am interested in a different cutoff point.

How many of whose hours were spent through the point when Swartz was identified and stopped on January 6th? I.e., excluding the time people spent being interviewed after Swartz was arrested by Cambridge police and responding to subpoenas, but including the full period MIT employees were actively trying to identify and put a stop to who was exploiting JSTOR.

I recognize it is a quick turnaround, but if you can give me the cut on Tuesday, it would be much appreciated.

I will do my best, but that shouldn't be a problem. The challenge we're having is coming up with an hourly rate to apply. I guess we don't do that often. I can definitely get you the total hours, though. I have those now and just have one clarifying question for [redacted].

Subject: Indictment of Aaron Swartz
Attach: Swartz Indictment Final.pdf

Aaron Swartz has just surrendered to a warrant for his arrest. The underlying Indictment has just been unsealed and a copy is attached.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA	Crim. No.
v.	VIOLATIONS:
AARON SWARTZ,	18 U.S.C. § 1343 (Wire Fraud)
Defendant	18 U.S.C. § 1030(a)(4) (Computer Fraud)
	18 U.S.C. § 1030(a)(2), (c)(2)(B)(iii) (Unlawfully Obtaining Information from a Protected Computer)
	18 U.S.C. § 1030(a)(5)(B), (c)(4)(A)(i)(I),(VI) (Recklessly Damaging a Protected Computer)
	18 U.S.C. § 2 (Aiding and Abetting)
	18 U.S.C. § 981(a)(1)(C), 28 U.S.C. § 2461(c), and 18 U.S.C. §982(a)(2)(B) (Criminal Forfeiture)

INDICTMENT

The Grand Jury charges that at all relevant times:

PARTIES

1. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology ("MIT") was and continued to be a leading research and teaching university located in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

2. JSTOR, founded in 1995, was and continued to be a United States-based, not-for-profit organization that provides an online system for archiving and providing access to academic journals. It provides searchable digitized copies of over 1,000 academic journals, dating back for lengthy periods of time.

3. JSTOR's service is important to research institutions and universities because it can be extraordinarily expensive, in terms of both cost and space, for a research or university library to maintain a comprehensive collection of academic journals. By digitizing extensive, historical collections of journals, JSTOR enables libraries to outsource the journals' storage, ensures their preservation, and enables authorized users to conduct full-text, cross-disciplinary searches of them. JSTOR has invested millions of dollars in obtaining and digitizing the journal articles that it makes available as part of its service.

4. JSTOR generally charges libraries, universities, and publishers a subscription fee for access to JSTOR's digitized journals. For a large research university, this annual subscription fee for JSTOR's various collections of content can cost more than $50,000. Portions of the subscription fees are shared with the journal publishers who hold the original copyrights. In addition, JSTOR makes some articles available for individual purchase. Publishers decide which articles can be purchased individually and set fees for their articles. JSTOR facilitates the purchase of these articles from the archive on behalf of the participating publishers.

5. JSTOR did not permit users:

a. to download or export content from its computer servers with automated computer programs such as web robots, spiders and scrapers;

b. to download all of the articles from any particular issue of a journal; or

c. to make other than personal use of individually downloaded articles.

6. JSTOR notified its users of these rules, and users accepted these rules when they chose to obtain and use JSTOR's content.

7. JSTOR provided MIT with its services and content for a fee.

8. MIT, in turn, made JSTOR's services and content available to its students, faculty, and employees. MIT also allowed guests of the Institute to have the same access as its students, faculty, and employees for short periods of time while they were on campus.

9. JSTOR's computers were located outside the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and thus any communications between JSTOR's computers and MIT's computers in Massachusetts crossed state boundaries. JSTOR's computers were also used in and affected interstate and foreign commerce.

10. Aaron Swartz lived in the District of Massachusetts and was a fellow at Harvard University's Center for Ethics. Although Harvard provided Swartz access to JSTOR's services and archive as needed for his research, Swartz used MIT's computer networks to steal well over 4,000,000 articles from JSTOR. Swartz was not affiliated with MIT as a student, faculty member, or employee or in any other manner other than his and MIT's common location in Cambridge. Nor was Swartz affiliated in any way with JSTOR.

OVERVIEW OF THE OFFENSES

11. Between September 24, 2010, and January 6, 2011, Swartz contrived to:

a. break into a restricted computer wiring closet at MIT;

b. access MIT's network without authorization from a switch within that closet;

c. connect to JSTOR's archive of digitized journal articles through MIT's computer network;

d. use this access to download a major portion of JSTOR's archive onto his computers and computer hard drives;

e. avoid MIT's and JSTOR's efforts to prevent this massive copying, measures which were directed at users generally and at Swartz's illicit conduct specifically; and

f. elude detection and identification;

all with the purpose of distributing a significant proportion of JSTOR's archive through one or more file-sharing sites.

MEANS OF COMMITTING THE OFFENSES

12. Swartz alone, or in knowing concert with others unknown to the grand jury, (hereafter simply "Swartz" in this section) committed these offenses through the means described below.

September 24 through 27, 2010

13. On September 24, 2010, Swartz purchased an Acer laptop computer from a local computer store with the intent of using it to automatically and systematically harvest JSTOR's archive of digitized journal articles.

14. Later that day, Swartz connected the Acer computer to MIT's computer network from a location in Building 16 at MIT and registered under a pseudonym with MIT's computer network as a guest. MIT offers campus guests short-term service on its computer network. Campus guests must register on the MIT network and are limited to a total of fourteen days per year of network service.

15. Swartz registered on the network using identifiers chosen to hide his identity as the computer's owner and user.

a. The computer was registered under the fictitious guest name "Gary Host."

b. The computer's client name was specified as "ghost laptop." A computer's client name helps to identify it on a network and can be chosen by its user. In this case, the name was simply created by abridging the pseudonym "Gary Host," combining the first initial "g" with the last name "host."

c. The fictitious "Gary Host's" e-mail address was identified as "ghost@mailinator.com." This was a "throwaway" e-mail address. Mailinator is a free, disposable e-mail service that allows a user to create a new e-mail address as needed, without even registering the address with Mailinator. Mailinator provides this service for users to have an anonymous and temporary e-mail address. Mailinator accepts mail for any e-mail address directed to the mailinator.com domain without need for a prior registration, and it allows anyone in the world to read that mail without having to create an account or enter a password. All mail sent to mailinator.com is automatically deleted after several hours whether read or not.

16. On September 25, 2010, Swartz used the Acer laptop to systematically access and rapidly download an extraordinary volume of articles from JSTOR. He used a software program to automate the downloading process so that a human being would not need to keep typing in the archive requests. The program was also designed to sidestep or confuse JSTOR's efforts to prevent this behavior.

17. These rapid and massive downloads and download requests impaired computers used by JSTOR to service client research institutions and threatened to misappropriate its archive.

18. As JSTOR, and then MIT, became aware of these efforts to steal a vast proportion of JSTOR's archive, each took steps to block the flow of articles to Swartz's computer and thus to prevent him from redistributing them. Swartz, in turn, repeatedly altered the appearance of his Acer laptop and the apparent source of his automated demands to get around JSTOR's and MIT's blocks against his computer.

a. On the evening of September 25, 2010, JSTOR blocked the computer's access to its network by refusing communications from the computer's assigned IP address. An IP (short for "Internet Protocol") address is a unique numeric address used by a computer on the Internet. Every computer attached to the Internet must be assigned an IP address so the Internet traffic sent from and directed to that computer can be directed properly from the source to its destination. Most Internet service providers control a range of IP Addresses. MIT controls all IP addresses that begin with the number 18. In this case, the computer had been assigned an IP address of 18.55.6.215, and JSTOR blocked communications from that IP address.

b. On September 26, 2010, Swartz obtained for his computer a new IP address on the MIT network – 18.55.6.216 – and began again to download an extraordinary volume of articles from JSTOR. Accesses from this address continued until the middle of the day, when JSTOR spotted and blocked this IP address as well. Because the exploits on September 25 and 26 were both launched from MIT IP addresses beginning with 18.55.6 , and because computers used by JSTOR to service client research institutions were again impaired and its archive at risk of misappropriation, on September 26, 2010, JSTOR began blocking a much broader range of IP addresses. As a result, legitimate JSTOR users at MIT were denied access to JSTOR's archive until September 29, 2010.

c. Notified by JSTOR of what was happening, MIT sought to block Swartz more specifically. It did so by prohibiting the Acer laptop from being assigned an IP address on MIT's network. When a user plugs his computer into the wired network on MIT's campus, his computer's MAC address is used to determine whether he has been authorized to use the network. A MAC address is a unique identifier assigned to a computer network interface, in this case, the Acer laptop's network interface card. A MAC address most often is assigned by the manufacturer of the network interface card and therefore generally remains constant on the device. Although a MAC address is intended to be a permanent and globally unique identification, a user with the right knowledge can change the MAC address, an action referred to as "MAC address spoofing," as discussed below.

d. As part of the registration process, "Gary Host's" computer, i.e., the Acer laptop, had identified its network interface's MAC address as 00:23:5a:73:5f:fb. Consequently, on September 27, 2010, MIT deactivated the guest registration for the "ghost laptop" by barring any network interface with that MAC address from being assigned a new IP address.

19. MIT banned the Acer laptop from its network under and consistent with its own computer use rules, which required users to:

a. use the network to support MIT's research, education, and MIT administrative activities, or at least to not interfere with these activities;

b. maintain the system's security and conform to applicable laws, including copyright laws; and

c. conform with rules imposed by any networks to which users connected through MIT's system.

Guest users of the MIT network agreed to be bound by the same rules that applied to students, faculty, and employees. These rules explicitly notified users that violations could lead to state or federal prosecution.

October 2 through 9, 2010

20. Despite knowing that his computer had been blocked from JSTOR's and MIT's networks, Swartz sought and obtained another guest connection on MIT's network, again for his Acer laptop less than a week later, on October 2, 2010.

21. Once again, Swartz registered the Acer latop on the network using identifiers chosen to avoid identifying Swartz as the computer's owner and user:

a. The computer was once again registered under the fictitious name "Gary Host" and the client name "ghost laptop."

b. To evade the MAC address block, Swartz spoofed the computer's MAC address, manipulating it from 00:23:5a:73:5f:fb to 00:23:5a:73:5f:fc (the final "b" became a "c").

c. By re-registering the "ghost laptop," Swartz ensured that it was assigned a new IP address. By obtaining a new IP address, Swartz disassociated his rogue computer from the IP addresses used to exploit JSTOR in September.

22. On October 8, 2010, Swartz connected a second computer to MIT's network and registered as a guest, using similar naming conventions: the computer was registered under the name "Grace Host," the computer client name "ghost macbook," and the throw-away e-mail address "ghost42@mailinator.com."

23. The next day, October 9, 2010, Swartz used both the "ghost laptop" and the "ghost macbook" to systematically and rapidly access and download an extraordinary volume of articles from JSTOR. The pace was so fast that it brought down some of JSTOR's computer servers.

24. In response, JSTOR blocked the entire MIT computer network's access to JSTOR for several days, beginning on or about October 9, 2010.

November and December, 2010

25. During November and December, 2010, Swartz used the "ghost laptop" (i.e., the Acer laptop) at MIT to make over two million downloads from JSTOR. This is more than one hundred times the number of downloads during the same period by all the legitimate MIT JSTOR users combined. Of the downloads, approximately half were research articles, with the remainder being reviews, news, editorials, and miscellaneous documents.

26. This time around, Swartz circumvented MIT's guest registration process altogether when he connected to MIT's computer network. By this point, Swartz was familiar with the IP addresses available to be assigned at the switch in the restricted network interface closet in the basement of MIT's Building 16. Swartz simply hard-wired into the network and assigned himself two IP addresses. He hid the Acer laptop and a succession of external storage drives under a box in the closet, so that they would not be obvious to anyone who might enter the closet.

January 4 through 6, 2011

27. On January 4, 2011, Aaron Swartz was observed entering the restricted basement network wiring closet to replace an external hard drive attached to his computer.

28. On January 6, 2011, Swartz returned to the wiring closet to remove his computer equipment. This time he attempted to evade identification at the entrance to the restricted area. As Swartz entered the wiring closet, he held his bicycle helmet like a mask to shield his face, looking through ventilation holes in the helmet. Swartz then removed his computer equipment from the closet, put it in his backpack, and left, again masking his face with the bicycle helmet before peering through a crack in the double doors and cautiously stepping out.

29. Shortly thereafter, Swartz connected the Acer latop to MIT's network in a different building, again registering on the network using identifiers chosen to avoid identifying Swartz as the computer's owner and user.

a. The computer was registered under the fictitious name "Grace Host" and the client name "ghost laptop."

b. To evade the block on the computer's MAC address, Swartz had spoofed (manipulated) its MAC address a second time, changing it from the blocked 00:23:5a:73:5f:fb to 00:4c:e5:a0:c7:56.

c. By re-registering the "ghost laptop," Swartz ensured that it was assigned a new IP address. By obtaining a new IP address for his rogue computer, Swartz disassociated it from the IP addresses used to exploit JSTOR up to that point.

30. Swartz had a software program named "keepgrabbing.py" installed on the Acer laptop. Keepgrabbing.py was designed to download .pdf files from jstor.org and sidestep or confuse JSTOR's efforts to prevent the behavior.

31. When MIT Police spotted Swartz on the afternoon of January 6, 2011 and attempted to question him, he fled with a USB drive that contained the program "keepgrabbing2.py." "Keepgrabbing2.py" had distinct similarities to "keepgrabbing.py."

32. In all, Swartz stole approximately 4.8 million articles, a major portion of the total archive in which JSTOR had invested. Of these, approximately 1.7 million were made available by independent publishers for purchase through JSTOR's Publisher Sales Service.

33. Swartz intended to distribute a significant portion of JSTOR's archive of digitized journal articles through one or more file-sharing sites.

ALLEGED HACKER CHARGED WITH STEALING OVER FOUR MILLION DOCUMENTS FROM MIT NETWORK

BOSTON, Mass. - A federal indictment unsealed today, charges a Cambridge man with computer intrusion, fraud, and data theft in computer hacking incidents that targeted the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and JSTOR, a not-for-profit archive of scientific journals and academic work.

AARON SWARTZ, 24, was charged in an indictment with wire fraud, computer fraud, unlawfully obtaining information from a protected computer, and recklessly damaging a protected computer. If convicted on these charges, SWARTZ faces up to 35 years in prison, to be followed by three years of supervised release, restitution, forfeiture and a fine of up to $1 million.

The indictment alleges that between September 24, 2010, and January 6, 2011, Swartz contrived to break into a restricted computer wiring closet in a basement at MIT and to access MIT's network without authorization from a computer switch within that closet. He is charged with doing this in order to download a major portion of JSTOR's archive of digitized academic journal articles onto his computers and hard drives. JSTOR is a not-for-profit organization that has invested heavily in providing an online system for archiving, accessing, and searching digitized copies of over 1,000 academic journals. It is alleged that Swartz avoided MIT's and JSTOR's security efforts in order to distribute a significant proportion of JSTOR's archive through one or more file-sharing sites.

The indictment alleges that Swartz's repeated automatic downloads impaired JSTOR's computers, brought down some of its servers, and deprived various computers at MIT from accessing JSTOR's research. Even after JSTOR and MIT worked to block Swartz's computers, Swartz allegedly returned with new methods for accessing JSTOR and downloading articles.

The indictment alleges that Swartz exploited MIT's computer system to steal over four million articles from JSTOR, even though Swartz was not affiliated with MIT as a student, faculty member, or employee. In fact, during these events, Swartz was allegedly a fellow at a Boston-area university, through which he could have accessed JSTOR's services and archive for legitimate research.

United States Attorney Carmen M. Ortiz said, "Stealing is stealing whether you use a computer command or a crowbar, and whether you take documents, data or dollars. It is equally harmful to the victim whether you sell what you have stolen or give it away."

"The New England Electronic Crimes Task Force has taken an aggressive stance in the investigation of computer intrusions and other cybercrimes," said Steven D. Ricciardi, Special Agent in Charge of the United States Secret Service in New England. "Through this task force, the Secret Service and our partners on the Cambridge and MIT Police Departments demonstrate the importance of cooperation among law enforcement to focus resources and respond effectively to investigate and prevent this type of fraud."

At this time, the government is unaware of any personal identifying information being stolen from JSTOR as a result of SWARTZ's alleged actions.

U.S. Attorney Ortiz, Special Agent in Charge Ricciardi and Commissioner Robert C. Haas of the Cambridge Police Department made the announcement today. The case was investigated by the United States Secret Service's Electronic Crimes Task Force and the Cambridge and MIT Police Departments. The case is being prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorneys Stephen P. Heymann and Scott L. Garland of Ortiz's Cybercrime Unit.

The details contained in the indictment are allegations. The defendant is presumed to be innocent unless and until proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt in a court of law.

As we discussed yesterday, Local Rule 116.2 requires us at the very beginning of a case to do criminal records checks on witnesses we anticipate calling at trial. For this we need their dates of birth. Please let me know whether you would like to provide them or whether we should get them from the MIT police, which may be faster and more efficient.

To be clear, this list is necessarily very tentative at this stage, and certainly will be refined as trial approaches.

As we discussed yesterday, Local Rule 116.2 requires us at the very beginning of a case to do criminal records checks on witnesses we anticipate calling at trial. For this we need their dates of birth. Please let me know whether you would like to provide them or whether we should get them from the MIT police, which may be faster and more efficient.

To be clear, this list is necessarily very tentative at this stage, and certainly will be refined as trial approaches.

Attached are the cross-motions in the Swartz Case. Steve

DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA	)
v.	)	Crim. No. 11-CR-10260-NMG
AARON SWARTZ, Defendant.	)

DEFENDANT'S MEMORANDUM OF LAW
IN SUPPORT OF HIS MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Pursuant to Local Rule 116.3(G) and the September 9, 2011 order of this Court, Aaron Swartz moves this Court for an order compelling the government to provide discovery as provided by F.R. Crim. Proc. 16 and by the automatic discovery provisions in Rules 116.1(A)(1) and (C) and 116.2. The government has not provided a very substantial portion of the information and documents required to be disclosed by these rules. Instead, it has withheld automatically discoverable information and documents, and demanded that the defense agree to an unjustified protective order as a pre-condition to receipt of discovery. Without good cause, the government has withheld the following:

1. Defendant's Written Statements. The defendant's written statements that are within its custody, possession and control, e.g., Twitter and Facebook postings, websites, text messages and electronic mail. The government obtained some of this information as the fruit of warrantless seizures of devices that the government asserts belong to Mr. Swartz; some are the fruit of warrant-authorized seizures of items that the government asserts belong to Mr. Swartz; and, some information was obtained in response to grand jury subpoenas to electronic communications providers. The defendant's written statements are subject to automatic discovery.

Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(a) and Rule 16(a)(E). In paragraph A.1.a. of its August 12, 2011 letter to defense counsel (attached hereto as Exhibit 1), the government states that it will offer some of these written statements in its case-in-chief. The defendant's written statements are also material to the defense. The government does not provide any "good cause" for withholding the defendant's written statements.

2. Seized Electronic Data. In its August 12, 2001 letter, the government listed the items containing electronic data stored in electronic data storage media that it has seized as follows:

- Acer laptop computer recovered at MIT
- Western Digital hard drive recovered at MIT*
- HP USB drive seized from the defendant at the time of his arrest
- Apple iMac computer seized at Harvard
- Western Digital hard drive seized at Harvard
- HTC G2 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Nokia 2320 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Sony Micro Vault seized during the search of the defendant's residence

The government has no good cause to withhold copies of the seized electronic data, all of which is discoverable under Rule 16(a)(1)(E). For that reason, the instant motion seeks an order compelling the government to provide the defense with copies in the form of bit-by-bit, mirror electronic images of all of the data natively stored on the above-listed electronic devices, including any and all metadata. In order to effectively defend against the indictment's allegations, Mr. Swartz is constitutionally entitled to an exact and complete copy of the discoverable electronically stored information in its native format so that he may examine and, if appropriate, contest the provenance and substance of that evidence. See United States v. Briggs, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 101415 (W.D.N.Y.).

3. Electronic Data Obtained From Non-Parties. The government's August 12, 2011 letter states all documents and tangible objects that are material to the defense including, but not limited to, items obtained from MIT and JSTOR are being withheld. In its letter, the government asserts that:

> Because many of these items contain potentially sensitive, confidential, and proprietary communications, documents and records obtained from MIT and JSTOR, including discussions of victims' computer systems and security measures, we will need to arrange a protective order with you before inspection.

Exhibit 1 at 2 (emphasis added). Rule 16(d)(1) authorizes this Court to enter protective orders concerning information provided in discovery. However, the movant for such a protective order must make a showing of "good cause" for the entry of such an order.

The First Circuit has not provided guidance to the lower courts concerning the factors to be taken into account in determining whether a movant has shown Rule 16(d)(1) "good cause," except in cases involving disclosure of classified national security secrets under the Classified Information Procedure Act (CIPA). United States v. Pringle, 751 F.2d 419, 427-428 (1st Cir. 1984). Certainly, the information being withheld is not classified as secret for national security reasons. There is no allegation that the withheld information concerns an endangered confidential informant, or that there is any evidence to support a concern about witness intimidation or safety. United States v. Barbeito, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102688 (S.D. W.Va. 2009). The third-party-sourced documents are not child pornography or any other contraband. The government has no basis to claim that the withheld information is privileged (United States v. Thompson, 562 F.3d 387 (D.C. Cir. 2009)(work product privilege), patented (stipulated protective order in United States v. Pani, 08-CR 40034-FDS), or copyrighted. Unlike, the agreed order entered in United States v. Gonzalez, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 50791 (D.Mass. 2009), there is no personal financial information involved here, such as the credit card or social security numbers of consumers.

The government's unsupported assertion that some part of the third-party-sourced information may be "potentially sensitive, confidential, and proprietary" falls far short of good cause. The government asserts that some of the information includes discussion of the computer systems of MIT and JSTOR and security measures. This information is discoverable because it constitutes putative evidence that will be publicly disclosed in this litigation, including a public trial. The Court's September 9, 2011 order allows Mr. Swartz to oppose the government's motion for a protective order but, certainly, nothing in the government's August 12, 2001 letter to defense counsel constitutes good cause to impose a protective order concerning any third-party-sourced information.

4. Electronically-Stored Information Provided by the Defendant. The government is withholding and refusing to provide a copy of the electronic data stored in four Samsung hard drives delivered to the Secret Service by Mr. Swartz on June 7, 2011, at the office of undersigned counsel. The government has made no showing of good cause concerning this data which it would not have in its custody and control, but for Mr. Swartz's delivery of it to the government.

5. Complete Video Recordings. Paragraph E of the government's August 12, 2011 letter states that it has provided copies of what it considers to be the "relevant portions" of video recordings made on January 4 and 6, 2011, in a wiring closet in the basement of MIT's Building 16. Under Rule 16, Mr. Swartz is entitled to full and complete copies of all video recordings made in that closet including but not limited to recordings made at any time including, but not limited to, January 4 and 6, 2011, because the complete records contain evidence that is material to his defense.

6. Identifications. Paragraph G of the government's letter provides documents related to an identification procedure involving the use of a photo array but redacts all identifying information concerning the alleged eyewitness on the unfounded ground that the eyewitness has a right of privacy at this stage of the litigation. Rule 16 does not authorize redaction of information from discoverable documents. The purpose of this discovery rule is to enable the defense to move early in the proceeding to suppress eyewitness testimony, if the eyewitness was subjected to suggestive statements or activity by investigating officials. The purpose of the rule is undermined and rendered ineffective if the identity of the alleged eyewitness is withheld, because no effective investigation of the identification can be conducted without identifying information about the alleged eyewitness. Nothing in the government's letter provides any basis for defeating the purpose of the rule.

7. Exculpatory Evidence. In paragraph H of the government's letter, the government described but refused to provide almost all of certain exculpatory evidence, including evidence that, during the period covered by the indictment, persons other than Mr. Swartz at Harvard, MIT and China accessed the Acer laptop that was seized by the government, and persons other than Mr. Swartz at MIT and elsewhere were engaging in "journal spidering" of JSTOR data using a "virtual computer" that can be hosted by anyone at MIT. The government has no basis for withholding the electronic evidence described as exculpatory in its letter.

The government's letter at page 6 discloses that one of its witnesses has publicly-filed criminal charges pending against him or her, but withholds the name of the witness, purportedly on privacy grounds. The government has not disclosed the documents that mention the publicly-filed criminal charge against the witness. It is obliged by rule and by constitutional principles to disclose those documents. There is no legal basis for redacting the documents or withholding the identity of the witness. The purpose of the automatic discovery rule requiring early disclosure of exculpatory evidence is undermined by withholding witness identifying information.

Conclusion. Because the government has no valid basis for having withheld the discoverable information and evidence itemized in this memorandum, Mr. Swartz urges this Court to issue an order compelling the government to provide, or enable the defense to make, bit-by-bit, mirror image copies of native electronic data that constitute the written statements of the defendant, evidence seized by the government as listed in the motion, third-party-sourced evidence including, but not limited to, evidence from MIT and JSTOR, evidence provided to the government by Mr. Swartz, and exculpatory evidence. The order should also compel the government to disclose the complete video recordings, and identifying information concerning the alleged eyewitness who was exposed to the photo array and the witness who has publicly-filed criminal charges pending against him or her, as well as all documents that mention those criminal charges.

Re: United States v. Aaron Swartz
Criminal No. 11-CR-10260

Dear Counsel:

Pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 16 and Rules 116.1(C) and 116.2 of the Local Rules of the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, the government provides the following automatic discovery in the above-referenced case:

A. Rule 16 Materials

1. Statements of Defendant under Rule 16 (a)(1)(A) & (a)(1)(B)

a. Written Statements

The defendant's booking sheet and fingerprint card from the Cambridge Police Department are contained on enclosed Disk 5.

There are numerous relevant statements not made to government agents drafted by Defendant Swartz before the date of his arrest contained in electronic media, such as Twitter postings, websites and e-mail. These are equally available to the defendant. Those that the government intends to use in its case-in-chief are available for your review, as described in paragraph A(3) below.

Subject thereto, there are no relevant written statements of Defendant Swartz made following his arrest in the possession, custody or control of the government, which are known to the attorney for the government.

b. Recorded Statements

The defendant made recorded statements at the time of his booking by Cambridge Police on January 6, 2011. A copy of his booking video is enclosed on Disk 7.

c. Grand Jury Testimony of the Defendant

Defendant Aaron Swartz did not testify before a grand jury in relation to this case.

d. Oral Statements to Then Known Government Agents

Defendant Aaron Swartz made oral statements at the time of the search of his apartment to individuals known to him at the time to be government agents. The only statements made by him then which the government believes at this time to be material are memorialized in the affidavit in support of the search warrant for his office at Harvard, a copy of which affidavit is enclosed on Disk 3.

2. Defendant's Prior Record under Rule 16 (a)(1)(D)

Enclosed on Disk 3 is a copy of the defendant's prior criminal record.

3. Documents and Tangible Objects under Rule 16(a)(1)(E)

All books, papers, documents and tangible items which are within the possession, custody or control of the government, and which are material to the preparation of the defendant's defense or are intended for use by the government as evidence in chief at the trial of this case, or were obtained from or belong to the defendant, may be inspected subject to a protective order by contacting the undersigned Assistant U.S. Attorney and making an appointment to view the same at a mutually convenient time.

Because many of these items contain potentially sensitive, confidential and proprietary communications, documents, and records obtained from JSTOR and MIT, including discussion of the victims' computer systems and security measures, we will need to arrange a protective order with you before inspection. Please review the enclosed draft agreement and let us know your thoughts.

4. Reports of Examinations and Tests under Rule 16 (a)(1)(F)

Enclosed you will find Disks 1, 2, 5 & 6 containing reports of examination of the following:

- Acer laptop computer recovered at MIT
- Western Digital hard drive recovered at MIT
- HP USB drive seized from the defendant at the time of his arrest
- Apple iMac computer seized at Harvard
- Western Digital hard drive seized at Harvard
- HTC G2 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Nokia 2320 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Sony Micro Vault seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Four Samsung hard drives delivered to the Secret Service by Defendant Swartz and his counsel on June 7, 2011 (Please note that because of the number of files contained on Samsung model HD154UI hard drive, serial number S1Y6J1C2800332, it has not been practicable to date to make a complete file list in an Excel readable format, unlike the other drives.)
- A fingerprint analysis report from the Cambridge Police Department with respect to the Acer Laptop and Western Digital hard drive recovered at MIT
- A supplemental fingerprint analysis report with respect to these items

While not required by the rules, intermediate as well as final forensic reports where available are enclosed for many of the recovered and seized pieces of equipment on Disks 6 and 1, respectively.

B. Search Materials under Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(b)

Search warrants were executed on multiple pieces of electronic equipment and at multiple locations. Copies of the search warrants, applications, affidavits, and returns have already been provided to you, but are further found on Disk 3.

Four Samsung Model HD154UI hard drives were examined following their consensual and unconditional delivery to the United States Secret Service on June 7, 2011. As an additional precaution, a warrant, enclosed on Disk 3, was also obtained.

C. Electronic Surveillance under Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(c)

No oral, wire, or electronic communications of the defendant as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 2510 were intercepted relating to the charges in the indictment.

D. Consensual Interceptions under Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(d)

There were no interceptions (as the term "intercept" is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 2510(4)) of wire, oral, or electronic communications relating to the charges contained in the indictment, made with the consent of one of the parties to the communication in which the defendant was intercepted or which the government intends to offer as evidence in its case-in-chief.

E. Video Recordings

On January 4, 2011 and January 6, 2011, Defendant Aaron Swartz was recorded entering a restricted wiring closet in the basement of MIT's Building 16. Copies of relevant portions of the recordings (where he is seen entering, in, or exiting the closet) are enclosed on Disk 4.

F. Unindicted Coconspirators under Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(e)

There is no conspiracy count charged in the indictment.

G. Identifications under Local Rule 116.1(C)(1)(f)

Defendant Aaron Swartz was a subject of an investigative identification procedure used with a witness the government anticipates calling in its case-in-chief involving a photospread documented by MIT Police [redacted] Relevant portions of the police report of [redacted] and a copy of the photospread used in the identification procedure are enclosed on Disk 3. In both instances, the name of the identifying MIT student has been redacted to protect the student's continuing right to privacy at this initial stage of the case. On page 2 of the Report of Photo Array, USAO-000007, the initials beside each of the enumerated items have been redacted for the same reason.

H. Exculpatory Evidence Under Local Rule 116.2(B)(1)

With respect to the government's obligation under Local Rule 116.2(B)(1) to produce "exculpatory evidence" as that term is defined in Local Rule 116.2(A), the government states as follows:

1. The government is unaware of any information that would tend directly to negate the defendant's guilt concerning any count in the indictment. However, the United States is aware of the following information that you may consider to be discoverable under Local Rule 116.2(B)(1)(a):

- Email exchanges between and among individuals at MIT and JSTOR as they sought to identify the individual responsible for massive downloads on the dates charged in the Indictment. While the defendant has admitted to being responsible for the downloads and produced one copy of most of what was downloaded on these dates, these e-mails reflect JSTOR's and MIT's initial difficulties in locating and identifying him in light of the furtive tactics he was employing. The email exchanges will be made available in accordance with paragraph (A)(3) above.

- Counsel for the government understands that a number of external connections were made and/or attempted to the Acer laptop between January 4, 2011 and January 6, 2011, including from a Linux server at MIT and from China. The Linux server was connected to a medical center at Harvard periodically during the same period. While government counsel is unaware of any evidence that files from JSTOR were extracted by third parties through any of these connections, the connection logs will be made available to you in accordance with paragraph (A)(3) above.

- An analysis of one of the fingerprints on the Acer laptop purchased and used by the defendant cannot exclude his friend, Alec Resnick. The analysis is being produced for you; see paragraph (A)(4) above.

- While not a defense or material, one or more other people used or attempted to use scrapers to download JSTOR articles through MIT computers during the period of Defendant Swartz's illegal conduct. On the evening of November 29, 2010, the network security team at MIT was contacted and investigated journal spidering occurring on the site of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers. It was tracked to a group of shared computers on which anyone at MIT can host a virtual machine. It was determined that a virtual machine had been compromised. The user was notified that scripts placed on it were downloading journals from JSTOR, IEEE and APS. The machines were taken offline early the morning of November 30, 2010.

- The login screen on the Acer laptop when observed by Secret Service Agent Pickett on January 4, 2011 identified the user currently logged in as "Gene Host." A user name is different from a host name, and accordingly is similarly immaterial.

2. The government is unaware of any information that would cast doubt on the admissibility of evidence that the government anticipates offering in its case-in-chief and that could be subject to a motion to suppress or exclude.

3. Promises, rewards, or inducements have been given to witness Erin Quinn Norton. Copies of the letter agreement with her and order of immunity with respect to her grand jury testimony are enclosed on Disk 3.

4. The government is aware of one case-in-chief witness who has a criminal record.

Please be advised that one of the government's prospective trial witnesses was the subject of a charge in Somerville District Court in 1998 of being a minor in possession of alcohol and that the case was dismissed the following month upon payment of court costs. The government intends to make no further disclosures with respect to this matter, as the criminal charge could have no possible admissibility under either Fed.R.Crim.P. 609 or 608(b). If you believe you are entitled to additional information, including the identity of the prospective witness, please advise the undersigned, in which event the government will seek a protective order from the court to permit non-disclosure.

5. The government is aware of one case-in-chief witnesses who has a criminal case pending.

Please be advised that one of the government's prospective trial witnesses has pending state charges brought on July 7, 2009, involving the Abuse Prevention Act, Possession of Burglarious Tools, Criminal Harassment, and Breaking and Entering in the Daytime With Intent to Commit a felony. The events underlying the charges arise from the break-up of a personal relationship. The government has withheld the name of the witness and the others involved to protect their privacy, but will make them available along with the police reports in its possession subject to a protective order ensuring that the names, events and reports will not be disclosed publicly until the trial of this case, should the Court determine that a charge or information contained in the police reports is admissible for the purposes of cross-examination.

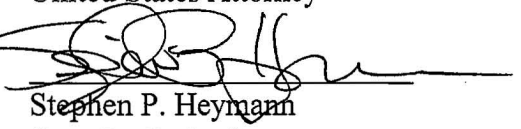
6. Based on the timeline as the government presently understands it from [redacted] report described in paragraph G above and contained on Disk 3, no named percipient witnesses failed to make a positive identification of the defendant with respect to the crimes at issue. As reflected in the report, three students present when the Acer computer and Western Digital hard drive were recovered from Building 20 by law enforcement stated that they did not see anyone come in and place the computer there. However, as the timeline reflects, this was not a failed identification, but rather that they were not percipient witnesses to the event which had occurred earlier.

I. Other Matters

The government has preliminary analysis notes prepared at Carnegie Mellon of certain code and files contained on the Acer Laptop, as referenced on Page 2 of SA Michael Pickett's Forensic Cover Report contained on Disk 1. While these are not encompassed by Rule 16 (a)(1)(F) (formerly 16(a)(1)(D)), the government will make these available for review as described in section (A)(3), above, subject to the same procedures proscribed for preliminary transcripts in Local Rule 116.4 (B)(2).

Your involvement in the delivery of four hard drives containing documents, records and data obtained from JSTOR creates potential issues in this case under the Rules of Professional Conduct, as I am sure you are aware. To avoid the potential for those issues under Rule 3.7 in particular, we propose a stipulation from your client that the hard drives were from him, thus taking you out of the middle and rendering the origin an uncontested issue under the Rule. This stipulation would be without prejudice to all arguments on both sides as to the admissibility of the drives and their contents at any proceeding.

The government is aware of its continuing duty to disclose newly discovered additional evidence or material that is subject to discovery or inspection under Local Rules 116.1 and 116.2(B)(1) and Rule 16 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.



The government requests reciprocal discovery pursuant to Rule 16(b) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and Local Rule 116.1(D).

The government demands, pursuant to Rule 12.1 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, written notice of the defendant's intention to offer a defense of alibi. The time, date, and place at which the alleged offenses were committed is set forth in the indictment in this case a copy of which you previously have received.

Please call the undersigned Assistant U.S. Attorney at 617-748-3100 if you have any questions.

Very truly yours,

CARMEN M. ORTIZ
United States Attorney

(PROPOSED) ORDER

After consideration of the Government's motion for a protective order, the Defendant's motion to compel discovery, and the oppositions filed by both parties in response to the motions, it is ordered that the Government shall provide copies, or enable the Defendant to make copies, of the following that are within its possession, custody or control:

1. All electronic data that constitutes or includes a written statement of Mr. Swartz including communications on Twitter, Facebook, text message and email or any other form of electronic communication.
2. All data, documents, and tangible things including, but not limited to, data obtained from MIT and JSTOR, that are discoverable under Rule 16(a)(1)(E). All data includes: (A) all data seized from devices that the government has asserted belong to the defendant, including:

   - Acer laptop computer recovered at MIT
   - Western Digital hard drive recovered at MIT*
   - HP USB drive seized from the defendant at the time of his arrest
   - Apple iMac computer seized at Harvard
   - Western Digital hard drive seized at Harvard
   - HTC G2 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence

* Search warrant applications for devices seized at MIT and Harvard allege probable cause to believe that these devices belong to Mr. Swartz and are evidence of the commission of the offenses charged in the indictment.

- Nokia 2320 cell phone seized during the search of the defendant's residence
- Sony Micro Vault seized during the search of the defendant's residence

(B) All data and items that are material to preparing the defense, namely, all data and items that constitute, or are evidence of, the occurrences and activity, including electronic communications, transmissions, and activity, that the government alleges occurred in the indictment.

(C) All data and items that the government intends to use in its case-in-chief.

3. All data, documents, and tangible things that constitute or are evidence of the potentially exculpatory information described in paragraph H.1 and H.5 of the government's August 12, 2011 letter to defense counsel other than the fingerprint data that has already been produced.
4. Full and complete copies of all video recordings made inside the wiring closet in the basement of MIT Building 16 including, but not limited to, recordings made on January 4 and 6, 2011.
5. All data, documents, and tangible things that constitute or are evidence of the eyewitness identification procedure mentioned in paragraph G of the government's August 12, 2011 letter to defense counsel.

When the data referred to in this order is computerized electronic data, transmissions, or communications, the government shall provide copies, or enable the defense to make copies, of the data in its native, bit-by-bit form, including all metadata, if the government has the data in its native format including all metadata. If the government does not have the data in its native form, including all metadata, it is to provide copies or enable the defense to make copies in the same computer searchable format of the data that is within in the possession, custody and control of the government, including optical character recognition software format.

MOTION OF THE UNITED STATES FOR A PROTECTIVE ORDER

The United States moves the Court to enter the attached protective order. The order is necessary to protect victims in the case from the very real risk of serious and irremediable harm while permitting the effective production of additional materials pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 16 and the Local Rules of this Court.

As the Court is aware, Aaron Swartz is charged with illegally accessing MIT's computer network and, through it, stealing a major portion of JSTOR's valuable digital database. While some peripheral facts will likely be disputed at trial, much of the evidence that cannot be disputed (university records, computer logs, records from one of Swartz's own computers, and surveillance camera recordings) demonstrate that Swartz:

1. was not a student, faculty member or employee of MIT;

2. gained physical access to MIT's computer network through a laptop computer he had installed in a restricted wiring closet in the basement of a research building;

3. intentionally masked his face with a bicycle helmet to avoid identification on a video camera as he entered the closet to remove the laptop;

4. used fictitious names and manipulated computer identification information to get and maintain access to MIT's computer network;

5. took repeated and affirmative steps to evade efforts by both MIT and JSTOR to lock him out of their computer networks;

6. downloaded a major portion of JSTOR's valuable digital database of scientific journals over the course of three months; and

7. earlier posted on one of his websites, guerrillaopenaccess.com, a call-to-arms entitled "Guerrilla Open Access Manifesto" which concluded "We need to download scientific journals and upload them to file sharing networks. We need to fight for Guerrilla Open Access." (Emphasis in the original.)

In this context, Aaron Swartz cannot be entrusted with responsibly protecting confidential internal records of MIT and JSTOR. These include databases, private electronic communications and records that are either very valuable or that could cause great damage if released to the public:

1. several million JSTOR articles that Swartz downloaded;

2. a software program Swartz used during his automated theft from JSTOR (and a variant of it);

3. discussion and analyses of Swartz's illegal access to MIT's network and possible means to defend against it;

4. analyses of methods used by Swartz during his automated theft from JSTOR and internal discussions on possible ways to stop it; and

5. descriptions of the networks' and databases' vulnerabilities.

The United States does not seek to withhold discovery of these items from Defendant or his defense counsel. Quite the contrary. The United States wants to produce this material, in many cases well ahead of the deadlines set by statute and the Local Rules. The proposed protective order, however, is critically necessary to prevent irreparably harmful redistribution of the material, whether intentional or unintentional.

The government's protective order proposes two levels of protection. The greatest is accorded the extensive database of digitized scientific articles that Defendant downloaded with his automated attack. These articles are JSTOR's lifeblood. JSTOR has spent millions of dollars to locate articles, work out copyright deals, digitize the articles, store them, and make them available online.[1] Accordingly, these articles should be protected by being maintained at government offices. The government can secure this data to an extent that a law office cannot. If and when the defense wishes to examine it, the government will make a copy available for examination with the assistance of an agent otherwise uninvolved in the case, who will be instructed not to communicate with the prosecution team about what items the defense reviews except at the request of the defendant or with prior approval of the Court. (The government does not expect the defense counsel, experts, or investigators to mishandle the evidence, whether at the government's offices or at their own. Rather, the government proposes to keep the articles in the government's custody because they will be safest there, including from unrelated third parties who might wish to access them.)

An important but less restrictive protection is accorded to the rest of the discovery materials, including the confidential records of victims MIT and JSTOR, Swartz's programs for downloading articles, and analyses of downloading methods or network vulnerabilities. Copies of these would be provided to defense counsel, but their custody would be limited to his office and the office of whichever experts and investigators that Defendant might retain. Defendant himself could review these materials at their offices and under their supervision.

[1]A JSTOR representative will address this issue before the Court at the hearing on this motion.

The government's protective order would not unfairly impede Defendant's ability to assist in the preparation of his defense. The United States does not seek to limit these discovery materials to his attorneys' eyes only. Rather, Defendant could review the materials at a variety of locations: the offices of his defense counsel, his expert witnesses, or his private investigators. Just as the United States did not oppose Defendant's bid to move outside the District, the United States does not seek to limit the geographic location of his attorneys, experts, or investigators that he hires, nor their number. But limiting his contact and review of these records to those custodians' offices is necessary. In a case that involves sensitive information, Defendant can be expected to go through reasonable security measures to access that information.

The United States' proposal is reasonable: you don't put a multimillion dollar database and discussions of its vulnerabilities in the custody of the person accused of stealing it.

If the Court seeks to compromise by asking the United States to cull through the discovery materials and designate page by page which documents would be stored with defense counsel and which with Defendant, the United States will comply.[2] But doing so would seriously delay production. There are a lot of pages to go through page-by-page. Rather, the United States would prefer to disclose its discovery early. The government's protective order would allow this early discovery.

For these reasons, the United States moves the Court to enter the attached protective order.

[2]The protective order already specifies an easily definable subset of documents that Defendant could store at his residence: fingerprint analyses, photo spreads, search warrants and supporting affidavits.

PROTECTIVE ORDER

Whereas the Indictment in this case alleges that JSTOR and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology ("MIT") are victims of conduct committed by Defendant Aaron Swartz, and the materials discoverable in this case under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16 and L. R. 116.1-116.2 contain potentially sensitive, confidential and proprietary communications, documents, and records obtained from JSTOR and MIT, including discussion of the victims' computer systems and security measures,

The Court finds good cause for, entry of this Protective Order pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(d):

1. The Government shall produce all documents, files and records discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16 and L.R. 116.1-116.2 for review by the defense - that is, Defendant Swartz, his defense counsel and their staff, and any experts or investigators retained by the defense - in accordance with the conditions set by this Order.

2. With the exception of files contained on four hard drives delivered to the Government pursuant to an agreement between JSTOR and Defendant Swartz dated June 4, 2011, and "Downloaded Data" as defined in that agreement contained on a Maxtor hard drive seized by the Government on January 6, 2011, defense counsel, their staff, and experts or investigators retained by the defense may obtain and make copies of discovery materials they deem necessary to prepare the defense of this case. All discovery materials and copies of discovery materials made by them or provided to them by the United States shall be kept securely at the offices of defense counsel, retained experts, or retained investigators, and shall not be transmitted to or kept anywhere else. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Defendant may keep securely at his residence in Boston or New York copies of the fingerprint analyses, photo spreads, search warrants and supporting affidavits produced during discovery for the purpose of litigating this case.

3. The defense shall use the discovery materials solely and exclusively to litigate this case (including investigation, pre-trial motions, trial preparation, trial, and appeal), and not for any other purpose. Except when preparing a potential witness, the defense shall not show or make the discovery materials available by any means (electronic, physical or otherwise) to any person who is not a member of the defense, absent further order of this Court. Once a potential witness has also signed and agreed to be bound by the terms of this Protective Order, the defense may show the potential witness discovery materials necessary to prepare them, but may not give or allow the potential witness to retain the discovery materials or copies of them.

4. Each person receiving access to the discovery materials, including members of the defense, shall sign and date a copy of this Order to indicate their understanding of, acknowledgment of, and agreement to abide by its terms. No one may review the discovery materials unless he or she first signs a copy of this Order. Defense counsel shall keep the signed copies in the event of a disclosure or use of discovery materials prohibited by this Order.

Defense counsel shall not be required to disclose to the Government who has been given access to what discovery materials, absent further order of this Court following an opportunity to be heard.

5. Defense counsel shall promptly notify the Government and this Court if any discovery materials are disclosed either intentionally or unintentionally to anyone not designated by this Order or further order of the Court. Each member of the defense and potential witness provided access to discovery materials shall promptly notify defense counsel of any such disclosures.

6. At the end of these proceedings, including any potential appeals, the defense shall destroy all copies of discovery materials received and made by it. Defense counsel may keep one copy of all discovery materials for such additional time as they deem necessary to ensure their ability to satisfy all professional obligations to Defendant in this matter.

7. The Government shall make copies of the four hard drives delivered to the Government pursuant to an agreement between JSTOR and Defendant Swartz dated June 4, 2011, and "Downloaded Data" as defined in that agreement contained on a Maxtor hard drive seized by the government on January 6, 2011 available for review by the defense at the Boston Office of the Secret Service at mutually convenient times. During any review conducted by the defense, the Secret Service shall make an agent otherwise unaffiliated with the investigation and prosecution of this case available to provide assistance. This agent shall not communicate with the prosecution team about what items the defense reviews, except at the request of Defendant Swartz or with prior approval of the Court.

8. Nothing in this protective order is intended to otherwise restrict the proper use by the defense of any discovery materials during the investigation, pre-trial litigation, trial preparation, trial or appeal of this matter.
